

Spooky Old Haunted School?

Last Saturday, on the 19th of August, 2017, two high school kids went exploring in the old and abandoned Patrick Henry Middle School. It has been abandoned for a couple of years, since it started losing students by the time a school day ended. It is possible that the haunting started before it was abandoned, though there is no way to be sure. Dan Johnson and Johnny Danson, best friends who attended the school for a year before it closed, have decided to head back and poke around the dusty buildings and school equipment. "It was scary at first, but by the time we left, I was a bit more than scared. I was really scared." said Dan when interviewed.

What They Found

I am sure that most of you in the audience are wondering, "What was so scary?" Well, according to Dan and Johnny, multiple things. As you might have guessed, wandering around an abandoned school is not exactly what would make you comfortable, but for Dan and Johnny, it was not only the scenery that bothered them. There were multiple cases of footsteps from just inside other rooms or around corners, and when they went to investigate, they found that there was, in fact, nothing there. They heard a scream from the roof, clawing from the walls, and in one room, they found lit candles, in a circle. At this point, they decided to flee the scene.
